a debate regarding whether the university's library should be open to the public. Some believe that it will do us more good than harm, while others argue that it will pose a threat to the order and operation of the university. In my view, the university authorities should be cautious about offering the outsiders an access to such an important venue, the library, serving as a critical academic facility as well as an indispensable research site for both students and teachers, is supposed to keep those limited valuable resources to its authorized users. If the university chooses to open the library to the public, it is highly possible that a mass of people will rush into this place, leaving many college students and teachers unable to complete their academic work. Furthermore, when too many citizens crowd into the library, there will be unnecessary talking, laughing, quarreling or even chasing, incurring disorder of one kind or another. In conclusion, the merits of such a practice outweigh the demerits. Therefore, opening the university's library to the public must never be put on the university's agenda.

The lunar calendar originated from China thousands of years ago, was set by the moving law of the sun and the moon. For a long period of time, such a calendar has played a very important role in agricultural production and people's daily life. Ancient Chinese arranged their farm work by the date of the lunar calendar to make the best use of natural resources and climate and improve the quality and yield of crops. Traditional Chinese festivals such as the Spring Festival and the Mid-autumn Festival are based on the lunar calendar. It is a significant part home to a fire that broke out in a building on Main Street Saturday, officials said. Firefighters responded to the three story building shortly after 1p. orted for the fire. According to Norwalk Deputy Fire Chief Adam Markiewicz. said Markiewicz encountered heavy smoke coming from the second floor when they arrived. A team of about 25 firefighters then spent about 25 minutes extinguishing the flames. Officials described the structure as a mixed use building that features commercial businesses on the first floor and residential on the second and third floors.

in the building. Due to smoke and damage, the four apartments were declared uninhabitable, and the six residents had to move to another place, officials said. No injuries were reported in connection with the fire. The Norwalk Fire Marshal is investigating the cause and origin of the fire.

cast new light on historic research, suggesting that the season of birth has a link with an increased risk of certain mental health conditions. The study looks at symptoms of anxiety and depression among more than 70,000 older adults in Europe. A number of past studies have found the link between season of birth and mental health diagnoses.

Research has suggested that such links could arise from various things. These include nutrient intake, sun exposure, climate, and disease exposure varying across the course of the year. However, evidence has been mixed. More recent studies have suggested that factors such as social class or economic background have more to do with these diagnoses than month of birth.

Q3: What does the new study find?

relationship between participants month of birth and symptoms of depression or anxiety. There was some variability in some countries. In Poland, depressive symptoms fluctuated a little depending on birth month. In the Czech Republic, the same was true of anxiety symptoms. But on the whole, there was no systematic pattern.

What have a number of past studies found about season of birth?

Q4: What about the relationship between participants month of birth and symptoms of depression?

NEWS: I have a clone of a star police dog. The clone was born in a research facility in Beijing in December. Tests show that the clone and her mother are almost identical genetically. The mother dog helped solve multiple murders and many other crimes. The clone has already performed better than traditionally bred dogs on several tests.

well, as expected, continue to be a perfect reproduction in the training time for police dogs, which usually takes about five years. The ultimate goal of scientists is to produce clones of talented police dogs that can be trained in months instead of years. However, this goal is not yet possible due to the current costs of the technology.

It has been made so many times before. And so, in this area, six clones began working with the police in 2008.

Q5: What do the dog researchers tests show?

Q6: What is the cloning process for police dogs?

Q7: Why does the news report say the scientists goal is not yet possible?

W: I can see the article online about the new TV series based on the book The Three Body Problem?

Q8: What are your thoughts on the book? I haven't been able to read for pleasure in months. W: Well, sounds like if you're going to read anything for fun, this is the book. It's written by a Chinese science fiction writer. I can remember his name, but he's written three books.

s in all, and The Three Body Problem is the first in the series. I don't want to say too much and spoil it for you, but it's definitely got some amazing technological and sociological concepts in it.

My taste doesn't sound like it would suit a TV series based on it now, I don't know if I should read the book or watch the show first.

W: I think read the book first. It's rare for the show or movie to be better than the book. And then, you just end up ruining the book for yourself, if the show isn't very good.

M: When is the show supposed to start? I'm a bit overwhelmed with the amount of data I still need to collect to finish my thesis. But I still need to relax sometimes.

W: It's a pretty long one, and it's going to be quite long. There are 24 episodes. Well, maybe you could download an electronic copy of the book and try to read it before the show starts.

M: That's a good idea. And then, maybe we can watch the series together. Thanks for the tip, Alice. No problem.

Q: How did the man get to know her?

W: The woman says she can't remember about the books author?

Q: What does she say about the thesis?

W: What will she most probably do first after the conversation?

W: I have a question to make. It's about the vegetable food festival you are holding on the 19th of August at the Newcastle City Hall.

M: Yes, please. My name is Philip. How

W: You say you grow organic vegetables on my farm, as well as doing my own home baking. Would I be able to sell both the vegetables and items baked from them at the festival?

M: That's exactly what I'm looking for. We're getting close to the deadline, however. Do you prefer to fill out an application on the web, or to print it out and fill it in by hand and then post it back to us? Remember that you will have to have all your certificates to hand when you are filling out the forms, as the standards are high and they will be carefully checked before anyone will be able to sell their produce at the event.

W: You should be fine with that. I have all my certificates, as we run a small farm shop too. But can you give me your details anyway?

M: Please address it to the Organic Organisation, Vendor Applications, 112 Queens Road, Newcastle, Northumbria. The postcode is NU 293LJ. Remember that the closing date is next Tuesday, the 28th of June.

W: That's absolutely wonderful. Thank you for your help. Goodbye.

rs. It's a new wild camping. Opponents call it illegal camping. What both sides accept is that there has been a boom in the past few months, with increasing numbers of visitors pitching their tents on any bit of land they fancy in the UK. In part, this reflects the fact that official campsites have been wholly or partially closed, or are overflowing, in a summer when fewer people are going abroad.

a time when many people are worried about what the economic future holds. But it may also be an expression of a desire for going outdoors. A response to the months of lockdown. Most of the coverage of the boom in wild camping has been negative. Camping in public parks has now been banned for August and the early part of September because campers dump litter, human waste, and even their tents on the grassland.

has been taken even in Scotland, where camping is usually permitted on most of its open land. Clearly, there have to be rules. It would make sense that wild campers need to ask for permission to camp from landowners, especially outside Scotland, where the law is far more restrictive. It would be common sense for people to use sma ll tents and leave no trace of their visit.

They have been attracted by a patch of land that is close to wilderness, and it is their responsibility to keep it that way.

Q16: Why has camping become popular in the UK?

Q17: Why is camping banned for part of the summer in public parks?

Q18: What does the passage say about the Amazon River Dolphin?

Paragraph 2 down the Amazon River, minding your own business, calmly keeping an eye out for alarmingly large snakes, and a curious pink dolphin appears to swim alongside. While this may seem like a mythical creature, pink dolphins do exist in the Amazon region. The Amazon River Dolphin is a giant among its species.

measured up to 2 meters long and weigh around 204 kilograms. Size isn't the only thing that sets the Amazon River Dolphin apart. Thriving in South American rivers and temporary lakes caused by seasonal flooding, this freshwater dolphin is sometimes shockingly pink. Although born gray, males of the species are easily identified as they enter adulthood by a decisive pink shade.

Their unusual coloring is believed to be the result of scar tissue from dolphin fights, whether play fighting or a serious bid for a mate. The deeper the pink, the more attractive the males are believed to be, and the older the male, the more pink he will have. There's also a theory that this color helps the dolphins more readily blend in with their surroundings.

Paragraph 3 In rains, rivers along the Amazon rainforest turn a pink shade, and with Male dolphins are harder to detect. The Amazon wetland system, fed by the Amazon River, is a crucial place for pink dolphins to breed. And, since 2018, has been granted internationally protected status.

Q19: What does the passage say about pink dolphins?

Q20: What is the evidence of the impact of the Amazon wetland system since 2018?

Q21: What has become of the Amazon wetland system since 2018?

Paragraph 4 Wave survey, a full 70 percent of the near new Mett said they've received financ ial support from their parents in the past year, and 58 percent said they couldn't afford their current lifestyles without it. The most common types of financial support include cell phone plans, food, school costs and car expenses.

Parental financial support of early adults, said Ken Dichtwald, CEO of Age Wave, is the new normal. But 64 percent of the young adults surveyed said parents' financial support to children aged 25-34 is a bad thing, because it makes those kids dependent. By contrast, only 29 percent thought supporting men and women aged 18-24 is bad.

That has remained high help parents and children get ahead. Dick Fould believes the young women and men surveyed were saying that by 25, young adults ought to be financially independent. In fact, the respondents said financial independence defines adulthood. Financial independence is something they were struggling with and challenging by.

One big reason they are struggling, Dichtwald attributed to college loans, of which the average amount is $37,000. Many of the parents have taken on college loans for the kids too, sometimes at the expense of their own finances. In the survey, 60 percent of early adults define financial success as being debt-free. Whether that's likely, or even possible, any time soon, is anyone's guess.

Q23: What do you think is a new survey finding? Why do young adults in the survey say financial support to children aged 25-34 is a bad thing?

Q25: What is one big reason young adults are struggling?

Passage One

on the following passage are based 1998 World Cup was won, disappointed fans were still cursing the disputed refereeing (裁判) decisions that denied victory to their team. A researcher was appointed to study the performance of some top referees.

The researcher organized an experimental tournament (锦标赛) involving four youth teams. Each match lasted an hour, divided into three periods of 20 minutes during which different referees were in charge.

Observers who did not know where the referee was in the tournament. Converted to a standard match of 90 minutes, each referee made almost 23 mistakes, a remarkably high number.

The researcher then videotaped the matches in detail. Surprisingly, he found that errors were more likely when the referees were close to the incident. When the officials got it right, they were, on average, 17 meters away from the action. The average distance in the case of errors was 12 meters. The research shows the optimum (最佳的) distance is about 20 meters.

The speed also seemed to be a factor. Errors were more likely when the referees were moving at a speed of about 2 meters per second. The average speed for errors was 4 meters per second.

The FIFA footballing body, wants to improve the standard of refereeing at the next World Cup, it should encourage referees to keep their eyes on the action from a distance, rather than rushing to keep up with the ball, the researcher argues.

His research suggests that the FIFA should retire at age 45 may be misguided. If keeping up with the action is not so important, their physical condition is less critical.

roud Americans value equality and individuality, yet they love and respect few things more than a uniform, whether it is the uniform of an elevator operator or the uniform of a five-star general. Why are uniforms so popular in the United States?

orms Among the arguments for uniforms, in the eyes of most people they look more professional than civilian (百姓的) clothes. People have become conditioned to expect superior quality from a man who wears a uniform. The television repairman who wears a uniform tends to inspire more trust than one who appears in civilian clothes. Faith in the skill of a garage mechanic is increased by a uniform. What easier way is there for a nurse, a policeman, a barber, or a waiter to lose professional identity (身份) than to step out of uniform?

o have Uniforms practical benefits. They save on other clothes. They save on laundry bills. They are tax-deductible (可减税的). They are often more comfortable and more durable than civilian clothes.

ains Primary among the arguments against uniforms is the consequent loss of individuality experienced by people who must wear them. Though there are many types of uniforms, the wearer of any particular type is generally stuck with it, without change, until retirement. When people look alike, they tend to think, speak, and act similarly, on the job at least.

ms a Uniforms give rise to some practical problems. Though they are long-lasting, often their initial expense is greater than the cost of civilian clothes. Some uniforms are also expensive ve to maintain, requiring professional dry cleaning rather than the home laundering possible with many types of civilian clothes.

1. It is surprising that Americans who worship variety and individuality _____ till judge a man by his clothes. He usually holds such high regard having a professional identity. He expects a welder or operator as much as a general in uniform.

He thinks that a man is transformed to _____ suggests quality work. Socially, he respects his social class. He appears to be more practical. He looks superior to a person in civilian uniform. The chief function of a uniform is to provide the wearer with a sense of confidence in himself. He wears it as a professional identity. According to the passage, people wearing uniforms _____.

A) They value individual freedom.
B) They tend to lose their individuality.

C) They enjoy greater popularity.
D) They are found to be more practical.

The passage is about _____ and Society.
Wearing uniforms is a form of _____ of _____ and _____ of _____.

The passage is based on the following passage:

Since we are always living in a large measure on our interpersonal relationships. One strength of the human condition is our tendency to give and receive support from one another under stressful circumstances. Social support consists of the exchange of resources among people based on their interpersonal ties.

Those of us with strong support systems appear better able to cope with major life stresses and daily hassles (困难). People with strong social ties live longer and have better health than those without such ties. Studies over a range of illnesses, from depression to heart disease, reveal that the presence of social support helps people fend off (挡开) illness, and the absence of such support makes poor health more likely.

First, friends, relatives, and co-workers may let us know that they value us. Our self-respect is strengthened when we feel accepted by others despite our faults and difficulties. Second, other people often provide us with informational support. They help us to define and understand our problems and find solutions to them. Third, we typically find social companionship supportive. Engaging in leisure-time activities with others helps us to meet our social needs while at the same time distracting (转移...注意力) us from our worries and troubles. Finally, other people may give us instrumental support—a financial aid, material resources, and needed services—that reduces stress by helping us resolve and cope with our problems.

Personal relationships are important because _

As they were indispensable to people before, they now enhance their resources to help people cope with life in the information era.

Such has been the case of illness research. Now we see that people's physical and mental health _____.

As you see, the social network which they have with the amount of support they get from others deal with their troubles is closely related to their strength for coping with major changes in their lives.

Which of the following is closest in meaning to the word "cushions" (Line 1, Para. 2)?

A) Up to. B) Does away with. C) Eliminates. D) Lays the foundation for.

69. Helping a sick neighbor with some repair work is an example of _____.

A) instrumental support B) informational support

C) social companionship D) the strengthening of self-respect

70. Social companionship _____ helps strengthen our ties with relatives

ing. Q: What are they talking about?

There are three groups of English learners; begin with the passage. Q: Immediate learners, and learners of special English. Beginners need to learn the basics of English. Students who have reached an intermediate level benefit from learning general English skills. But what about students who want to learn specialist English for their work or professional life? Most students, who fit into this third group have a clear idea about what they want to learn. A bank clerk, for example, wants to use this specialist vocabulary and technical terms of finance. But for teachers, deciding how to teach specialist English is not always so easy. For a start, the variety is enormous. Every field from airline pilots to secretaries has its own vocabulary and technical terms. Teachers also need to have an up-to-date knowledge of the specialist language, and not many teachers are exposed to working environments outside the classroom. These issues have influence d the way specialist English is taught in schools. This type of course is usually known as English for Specific Purposes, or ESP and there isn't ESP courses for almost every area of professional and working life. In Britain, for example, there are courses which teach English for doctors, lawyers, reporters, travel agents and people working in the hotel industry. By far, the most popular ESP courses are for business English.

15. What is the speaker mainly talking about? We are knowing why people start to use drugs. The first thing I noticed is that the reasons people abuse drugs are as different as people are from one to another. But there seems to be one common thread: people seem to take drugs to change the way they feel. They want to feel better or feel happy or to feel nothing. Sometimes, they want to forget or to remember. People often feel better about themselves when they are under the influence of drugs. But the effects don't last long. Drugs don't solve problems. They just postpone them. No matter how far drugs may take you, it's always around the next trip. After a while, people who miss drugs may feel worse about themselves, and they may use more drugs. If someone you know is using or abusing drugs, you can help. The most important part you can play is to be there. You can let your friends know that you care. You can listen and try to solve the problem behind your friends' need to use drugs. Two people together can often solve a problem that seems too big for one person alone. Studies of heavy abusers in the United States show that they felt unloved and unwanted. They didn't have close friends to talk to. When you or your friends take the time to care for each other, you're all helping to stop drug abuse. After all, what is a friend for?

 ort range. However, man overcame these faults by learning to track his targets at a close range. The long bow was most likely discover-
